HEAVY BORROWING HARMFUL

Agitation for Lower Passenger Rate Harriman's Alton Railroad Deal Depressing Influences-Significance of High Rate of Tidewater Notes, the week there was no inconsiderable revival in speculative circles of that spirit of pessimism which became so material aid to any proposed prosecution of either the Union Pacific or the Alton under the interestate commerce laws. prominently developed during the month of January.

Seemingly without adequate cause a selling movement broke out in the market, which was carried on with such intensity as to suggest the idea that the recovery in prices that had taken place during the preceding fortnight had been due to no other force than that of a mere buying back of contracts entered into speculatively for the fall. This conclu sion was not, of course, absolutely fortified, and it was indisputable that occur-in view of the gratifying fact that the bonds were placed exclusively with foreign investors. But a few days later came the news of the Pennsylvania Rail-road's sale of $60,000,000 of short to the sale of $60,0 road's sale of $60,000,000 of short-term notes and the $10,000,000 worth of similar

It was, of course, explained that a Matthews. favorable interpretation should really be placed upon the Pennsylvania's borrowing, inasmuch as this involved a large Railway cut-down of the previous plans therefor, No. 41 and $160,000,000 stock thus planned. The Pennsylvania people say, however, that they do not propose to offer any of these new bonds or stock for sale this year. and that of the $60,000,000 short-term t have just been sold $50,000,000 will go ng due at the end of the year. It is will be in receipt throughout the year of large sums of money in payments made upon the company's recent sale of its Norfolk and Western, Chesapeake and Ohio, Reading, and other stocks held in its treasury.

Case of Tidewater Notes.

The significance of the sale of notes by the Tidewater Railroad Company lay 1898, filed. in the high interest rate which the notes bore. It is very well understood that this railway has been built by a great capitalist whose personal credit is second to none in the land, and that the road gives debtedness whatever, although it will not begin to produce revenues for a considerable period. That under such circumstances it should be compatible.

The stances it should be compelled to raise money at 6 1-2 per cent interest im-pressed Wall street, rightly or wrongly, with the idea that the money market was really in a more comfortable position than had been commonly supposed.

the Tidewater notes, as dealt in by the bond and investment houses, advanced to premium over the price of the issue, out this occurrence was the exception in the market for short-term notes generally. The price of these notes developed heaviness, one reason therefor being, as was stated, the fact that the riginal venders of the notes, when selling them to large banks, did so upon a ceeds of the sale of the securities. This unted to offering the notes to these buyers at a concession from the list price, were enabled to offer the notes to indi than were commonly quoted.

the moment is, as Mr. Hill remarked during the week, one of semi-paratysis under the immense development of business that has come about in the last two years. Money for the purpose of proper ex-penditures for the purpose of grappling with these conditions is what the rail way companies imperatively need. But what likelihood is there that investors will be willing to buy railway stocks and animus, real or assumed, against the railroad companies as are now presented in almost every State legislature in the

There can be no denying that it appears likely that in many of the States of the Union there will be directed before the end of the winter a reduction of railway passenger fares to a rate of 2 or 21/2 cents mile. The courts no doubt will be asked to adjudge the constitutionality of these acts, but the prospect for the railroads in the matter is not flattering.

Behind it all looms up the scheme which it is understood has the backing of the President of the United States. for a sort of formal valuation of railway properties, with the idea of making the facts thus obtained the basis for an appeal to the national lawmaking body to pass laws looking forward to a reduc tion in railway freight tariffs. The rail-way companies probably would not object to such investigation if the standards of valuation were to be fairly and properly adjusted. That is to say, the railway companies ask only as a matter of right that they be allowed to credit themselves with the increment in the value of their investment, and that in the original cost of them shall not be

Finally and specifically, there was undoubted perturbation among speculators

On the other hand, all this is largely a matter of ancient history. and Prospective Investigation Into and any emphasis laid upon it now should hardly be supposed to startle the financial district. The presumption is that the government will make an effort to prove that the same people who watered the stock of the Alton in this manner sold it to themselves as the trustees of at least one of the railway systems wh New York, Feb. 24.-Although the course now control the Alton, so that they made of the stock market last week covered an immense profit personally out of the only a period of four days time, or but transaction. The company desires to secure the right to lay tracks on Cameron street westward from Payne street to a point on the old fair grounds, thence south to King street, and thence westward to Spring Park.

According to the proffer, the company wishes to pay the city $150 annually for the franchise and to grant to the city all rights and title to the property on the north side of King street, west of West street, recently acquired by the company, There was, for one thing, another outbreak of railway short-term note issues.

**Hoped Borrowing Was Over.**
Wall street had begun to entertain strong hopes that the bulk of borrowing of this character had been completed, and it lost heart when it discovered that its views as to the extent of the competition that the stock market would have to suffer from the output of high interest bearing railway obligations had been altogether too sanguine.
